

Know Your Traffic Laws

Prepared in cooperation with the Traffic Education Bureau of the Torrance Police Department

Driving can often be dangerous. Accidents just don't happen, and knowing how to make the right decision quickly can often make the difference between life and death.

Here are a few pointers to help those decisions when "the other driver" does something that puts you in a position of having to react quickly:

- A car passes you and cuts too closely in front of you, forcing you to swerve and your right wheel drops off the pavement . . . Don't yank the car back on the road. And don't slam on the brakes. Ease up on the gas, and steer so that the front and rear wheels are about three feet off the pavement but parallel with it. Then, turn back evenly — when you are in full control — to the pavement.

- You encounter a drunk or "mad" driver weaving from lane to lane . . . Don't try to pass him. Brake and let him go ahead. Avoid such drivers like poison. Stay behind him and don't risk pulling up along side of him.

- An oncoming driver blinds you by the glare of his headlights . . . You will be partially blind for seven seconds because you didn't angle your gaze to the right. Slow down, steer cautiously and stay as close to the right hand edge of the road as you can.

- You're going down a city street with cars parked on both sides of the street and another car pulls out fast and speeds directly at you — YOU'RE TRAPPED. . . Since an accident is unavoidable, take it on your front bumper. Sound your horn and jam on the brake. Switch off the ignition and brace your feet.

- You stop for a red light, you hear a screech of brakes and your rear view mirror shows a truck behind you that can't stop in time and is about to crash into your rear . . . Release the foot brake and flop over on the side. Duck down to avoid the danger of "whiplash" injury to your neck. As soon as you feel the impact, apply your brake and keep out of cross traffic.

THERE ARE also times when something goes wrong with your car or you encounter bad weather which you can't control. A few more pointers are:

- In heavy traffic you have a blowout in your right front tire . . . Don't brake. Grip the wheel and steer in a straight line. Gently feed gas in short spurts until you have the car under control and you can start touching the brake lightly. Keep going until you reach a turn-off.

- You suddenly hit a fog bank so thick you can't see ahead . . . You fear being struck from behind. Scout the right edge of the road for a safe spot to pull off the pavement; wait until the fog lifts.

- Your brake pedal suddenly drops lifelessly to the floorboard and you have a runaway car . . . Pull the emergency hand brake with all your strength. At the same time give your foot brake a series of short, swift pumps to build up pressure in the hydraulic system. Try to shift into low gear. Edge to the side of the road and look for a field or road shoulder.

- Your gas pedal sticks and your car shoots ahead into traffic . . . Don't jam on your brakes. Turn the ignition key. Put the transmission in neutral, then brake slowly until you can pull off the road.
- Driving at night, your headlights suddenly go out . . . Don't panic. Gradually slow down. See if the parking, fog, or spot lights still work. Take a flashlight from your glove compartment and aim it out the window. Then pull to the side of the road.

AND IF YOU do have an accident:

- Stop, don't leave the scene. Help any injured by applying first aid, then call the doctor. Exchange information with the other driver.
- Report the accident to the police and to your insurance agent as soon as possible.

Applications Open for Naval ROTC Programs

Applications for the U. S. Navy's 18th annual NROTC qualification test are now available to all high school senior men and graduates. The nationwide examinations will be given Dec. 14.

Miss Marianne Millard, senior counselor at West High School, said the examinations will be used to determine the 1964-65 selections for the NROTC scholarship program.

In addition to the examination, applicants will take a physical examination and be interviewed. More than 2,000 young men will receive the grants and a commission in the Navy upon graduation.

17,900 in Strip

Estimates of the population in Los Angeles were released this week by the city. Residents of Los Angeles City who have a Torrance mailing address totaled 17,900. The figures showed an increase of more than 2,500 over the three-year period since April, 1960.
